Story of a Star- Nisha

Start where you are. Use what you have. Do what you can.

Working in the retail sector can prove to be very challenging. The domain requires one to pay close attention to customers in order to understand and service their fashion choices, a task that can often present one with difficult situations. An employee's personality both carries and represents the brand. "It has been my dream to work as a retailer, get in touch with various types of people, and assist them in their fashion choices, but I lacked the skill set. I received inspiration from my father, who is also a retailer. I have seen him struggle throughout his life and seen him succeed. When I used to visit him in his shop, just the idea of him assisting customers in their choice of clothing intrigued me. However, his earnings weren't enough for a family of four. Working was the main motive of mine, but my disability always kept me under the bar."

She wanted to be independent with her dream, her eyes speak more than words, uses sign language with beautiful gesture and grown up in a family where girls are not allowed to go outside without elders all the odds worked against her, but it was the determination of Nisha which led her to live her life independently. Supportive siblings helped her to learn sign language but still the communication barrier with other did not helped her to get a employment. But as correctly said, where there is will, there is a way, Nisha's life changed after getting a call from Sarthak, Ghaziabad center.

Nisha's parents were skeptical of joining the training session, but she decided to chose the path which can led her to fulfill her dreams. Three months free of cost training helped her to equip herself in employability skills and faced many interviews after training but she was clear to get a retail job. Nisha's life changed after getting a chance to interact with HR of D-Mart. HR was really impressed knowing her passion working for Retail store na d immediately offered her job. Now, Nisha is working and helping her siblings and father financially and looking forward for growth in retail sector.
